

Melanie Snail is a dual French-American citizen from Silver Spring, Maryland. She graduated with High Distinction from the University of Virginia in Charlottesville, Virginia in 2013, double-majoring in both Middle Eastern Studies and International Relations. During her time at UVA, she served as the Resident Advisor of the French House from Fall 2010-Spring 2011, and was also admitted into the University of Virginia's highly-selective Distinguished Majors Program for Politics, for which she wrote an award-winning 200-page thesis on the prospects of Algerian democratization.

Melanie's academic interests include energy security as it relates to international relations, Middle Eastern political economy, as well as contemporary balances of power in the greater MENA region.

From 2013-2016, Melanie worked in the joint Executive Office of the Bureau of Near Eastern Affairs and South and Central Asian Affairs at the U.S. Department of State, providing support to the U.S. mission in Iraq. She previously interned in this office in the summers of 2012 and 2013, and also completed an internship in the U.S. House of Representatives as the Arab American Institute's government intern.

Melanie is an avid traveler, having visited over 35 countries, including Turkey, Egypt, Jordan, Iraq, Qatar, Oman, Lebanon, Sri Lanka, Brazil, and Colombia. She spent the Fall of 2011 in Cairo, studying abroad at the American University in Cairo, and spent the first year of her master's degree studying in Italy at SAIS's Bologna campus.

At SAIS, she was a Middle East Studies concentrator, also taking a keen interest in energy issues in that region. During her time at SAIS she visited both Saudi Arabia, and Palestine and Israel as part of academic trips. Melanie graduated with honors in May 2018 and will be joining the Dubai office of the Boston Consulting Group in the fall.

Melanie speaks English and French fluently and conversational Spanish, Italian, and Arabic.
