

JULIE STOEVER

Julie is from the US and graduated from Barnard College in 2013 with a Bachelor of Arts in Sociology and Human Rights. During her undergraduate studies, Julie attended classes at Columbia University in NY and Columbia's School of International and Public Affairs (SIPA), which anchored her understanding of why accountability in leadership is important. Her undergraduate thesis analyzed recidivism and the role of rehabilitation in New York prisons, which highlighted how a lack of education during incarceration led to recidivate. This finding prompted her to co-found a non-profit called the Jailhouse Lawyer's Handbook Project (JLH) that provides inmates with a manual outlining their federal rights behind bars.

After university, Julie worked as an associate at the Council on Foreign Relations (CFR) where she was exposed to the thought leadership of foreign officials, senior-level executives, and academics. She later worked at the World Economic Forum (WEF), where she focused on the nexus of bringing local voices to elite and exclusive conversations.

At SAIS Europe Julie is a MAIA student concentrating in International Affairs.