

Hugo Dixon

Chairman and Editor-in-chief of InFacts

Hugo Dixon is Chairman and Editor-in-chief of InFacts, a journalistic enterprise making the fact-based case for Britain to stay in the EU. He is a journalist and an entrepreneur. He founded Breakingviews in 1999, which he chaired until it was sold to Thomson Reuters in 2009. He now writes a fortnightly column for Reuters, Breakingviews and The International New York Times, as well as occasional columns for other publications including The Financial Times, The Guardian, The Telegraph, The Independent and The Times. He is also author of The In/Out Question: Why Britain should stay in the EU and fight to make it better.
